

Access map to the SEAC office

The Civil Aviation Authority in French Polynesia has left its premises historic sites close to the terminal to settle in the area north of the airport, at the foot of the control tower, where all its services will now be grouped together.

To find us, take the road to bypass that you can join from the Heiri roundabout, then drive up to the barriers which control access. For people who do not hold badge, ring the intercom and announce yourself as visitor to the SEAC.

Once access is authorized, follow the road to the tower. control, the SEAC building will then be clearly visible.

The telephone directory does not change and you you will be able to reach your contacts at the usual numbers.
